

About DC2

Destination College (DC2) is a structured, library-friendly workshop series designed to help high school students and their families understand the college journey early, calmly, and without pressure.

Rather than focusing only on applications or senior year, DC2 breaks college readiness into clear, age-appropriate steps across all four years of high school.

The goal is not to push students toward a specific outcome, but to help them understand the process, build confidence, and make informed decisions over time.

Destination College Workshop Series

A Calm, Clear Roadmap for High School Students and Families

Learn More

WHAT MAKES DC2 DIFFERENT

Focuses on process, not pressure ✓

Designed for students and caregivers together ✓

Emphasizes clarity, planning, and self-awareness ✓

Accessible for first-gen and college-curious families ✓

Who It's For & Why

DC2 is a library-friendly workshop series for high school students (Grades 9–12) and their caregivers.

It helps families understand the college journey early, calmly, and without pressure.

Instead of focusing only on applications or senior year, DC2 breaks college readiness into clear steps across all four years of high school, building confidence and clarity over time.

What Libraries Get

Easy-to-host, flexible sessions designed for public libraries.

- Offered as a series or standalone workshops
- Suitable for mixed-grade audiences
- Includes practical takeaway tools students and families can use at home.

The full 12-session workshop outline is provided separately.

Host At No Cost

The full DC2 workshop series is offered free of charge to the first 10 libraries that sign up to host. This includes facilitation, materials and customizable scheduling.

- No sales requirements.
- No obligation to use additional DC2 tools.
- No cost to participants.

Workshops can be tailored to your library's audience, schedule, and space.

